What was the best part of BRI's 2015 Student Leadership Conference?

The students.

Greetings!

August 17, 2015

BRI's 3rd Annual Student Leadership Conference in Washington, DC was one of our best ever, featuring a day of policy talks at The Heritage Foundation, a lively 2-on-2 healthcare policy debate produced by our Host Chapter, Georgetown University, sumptuous dinners, and networking. But the best part by far were BRI's student attendees.

This year we added several new features to the conference, including a segment for student presentations. Student leaders demonstrated either what freedom-based health policy work they accomplished during the year, or their best practices for running a successful BRI Chapter.

Student Presentations

Danny McCorry, Georgetown	0:23
Jaron Smith, MCW	12:46
Kate Nix, MCW	26:28
John Grimsley, Georgetown	38:34
Jared Rhoads, Geisel/Dartmouth	45:28
Sameer Lakha, Icahn/Mt. Sinai	56:07

The Student Presentations video is now available for viewing on BRI's website. Student presenters and start times of each presentation are listed above.

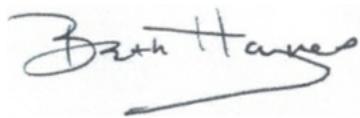

We are very proud of our Student Leader presenters, and encourage you to see for yourself the great work they did in 2014-2015.

Watch now

In addition to their rigorous medical studies, BRI students do significant additional work during the year to protect healthcare freedom. You'd be amazed at the quality and caliber of participants who represent their schools, their future professions, and Benjamin Rush Institute. Whom do you know who has something to offer? Ask them to become involved with BRI and help protect the doctor-patient relationship as the primary means of delivering quality medical care.

Give them more information. Forward this email to your friends and colleagues, and ask them to sign up for our newsletter, like us on Facebook and follow us on Twitter.
