Thanks for finding out about BRI at OSU College of Medicine! Now that you know we're here ... what's next?

Greetings!

September 15, 2015

Thank you for finding out about Benjamin Rush Institute and meeting the student leaders on the OSU College of Medicine. We're excited to get to know you!

Through the event sign up sheet, and by other requests, we've added your name and email address to our newsletter database. We send out 2 - 4 email newsletters monthly to our general membership, and a few more in addition to those, exclusively to our student leader body. We hope that you'll be interested in the various timely topics we cover, and you can unsubscribe any time.

BRI Student Membership Benefits

Becoming a BRI student member is easy and opens doors to certain benefits:

- Networking with other like-minded students, professors, speakers, doctors and healthcare professionals
- The chance to attend coveted healthcare policy conferences on exclusive BRI student scholarships
- Letters of recommendation & support when applying to selective internships at highly regarded national think tanks and policy institutes
- The option to contribute and be recognized for white papers and blog posts highlighted on BRI's website and in social media
- Personal development through organizing events with your chapter team, interacting with nationally renowned speakers, doctors and healthcare professionals

- Unique BRI lapel pin to show your support
- BRI Chapter Officers: First consideration to attend the annual BRI-Leadership Conference, held in a major US city in the spring

Attending BRI events and being involved with your campus BRI Chapter does not require membership, but is encouraged. Memberships run August-to-August to streamline bookkeeping and to coincide with the typical academic calendar. We welcome your participation. All new memberships will be valid through August, 2016.

For about $2 a month, it's easy to become a

What do BRI Student Leaders have to say?

If you'd like to get a sense of what some of our outstanding student leaders and participants accomplished last year, please watch this video of their presentations, delivered at the March 2015 BRI-Leadership Conference in Washington, DC. There are also many other videos on our website highlighting healthcare policy talks at The Heritage Foundation, and more!
