This Thursday, Nov. 19, 2015 NYC * A Debate

Greetings!

November 17, 2015

Sorry for the late notice - but this entire event has been a last minute affair. A week and a half ago, I was invited to participate in a debate by the Students for a National Health Plan (SNaHP) at Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York City. It's been a scramble - but we are ready and raring to go.

As the Affordable Care Act continues to unravel and fails to fulfill on its promises, the debate over the future of American medicine will continue. So - is the problem that the ACA failed to go far enough and what we need is more government in healthcare?

I think you know our answer to that question is a resounding NO. But the challenge remains to successfully communicate why we think empowering doctors and patients through a free enterprise system is the best way to achieve quality, affordable medical care accompanied by life-saving innovation and medical excellence.

Supporters of single-payer claim to be the champions of the poor. That may be their intention, but good intentions are not good enough. If you are in NYC this Thursday - come hear how and why freedom is the route to well-being, not just for the well-to-do, but for everyone.

Hope to see you there.

Students for a National Health Plan from Einstein College of Medicine request you RSVP here.
