It's working!

BRI is reaching students, and students are finding BRI. There are many young medical students who hunger for our mission and contribute to our voice. Whether newly exposed to free market ideas at conferences on scholarships generously funded by BRI members -- or whether a desire for healthcare freedom already burns within them, we are proud to partner with all of our student leaders.

BRI's blog is a platform for them to express their ideas and achievements. If you haven't read our blog lately, you might be surprised at the range of student-written work. Of 36 blog posts, 16 (44%) are student or affiliate contributions.

"Let's stop thinking about healthcare as a "system" or an "industry." It leads us to a mechanical approach towards medicine where "reform" is nothing more than moving pawns." ~Zach Howell, on 'cultural healthcare'

Zach Howell, a pre-med undergrad student at University of Delaware is our most recent contributor. Zach has now contributed two thoughtful articles featured on BRI's website.
