

“ I initially heard about Benjamin Rush Institute after a simple Google search for free market health care groups at med schools. Half of my education here at [my medical school] is intense sciences and the other half is advocating for national health care systems, raising the minimum wage, income redistribution, and a variety of other public health policies. I got fed up with it and found your organization online. ”

- BRI STUDENT LEADER

The 2014-2015 academic year was a record-breaking year for Benjamin Rush Institute (BRI). We held a record-breaking number of chapter events, had record-breaking attendance at our annual student leadership conference, and saw a record-breaking rise in the number of new BRI members.

BRI is growing in numbers and influence. As this report shows, we are reaching new audiences of medical students and medical professionals with our mission to protect the doctor-patient relationship and preserve the integrity of the medical profession while advancing commonsense healthcare policy solutions.

Chapter Status Update

BRI ended the 2014–2015 academic year with chapters and affiliates at 22 schools around the country, and is in conversation with interested students at an additional five schools. While we lost chapters at some schools over the summer, we added chapters and affiliates at six new schools during the course of the year, making 2014–2015 our strongest year to date.

Chapter Events

BRI chapters and affiliates sponsored 50 events over the course of the 2014–2015 academic year, a record number for BRI. The events included BRI’s signature Lecture Series, Journal Club, and healthcare documentary movie screenings. Average attendance at BRI events was around 40, though some events attracted as many as 150 attendees. These events showcase BRI and our mission and allow students to introduce important healthcare policy concepts to students and faculty.

Speaker Series Events

The BRI Speakers Bureau is a catalog of distinguished speakers that BRI has identified for chapters to use as a resource in planning their events. The Speakers Bureau includes a collection of top academics, medical doctors, and policy experts who are able to speak on a number of important topics in healthcare policy.

Medical College of Wisconsin BRI/AMA Lunch and Learn Journal Club

The BRI chapter at the Medical College of Wisconsin holds a monthly, student-led Journal Club meeting to discuss topics ranging from medical innovation and economics, to health policy and politics. The Journal Club is co-sponsored with the student group of the American Medical Association, the nation’s largest association of medical doctors. These hugely successful meetings allow BRI students to engage their peers in discussion and debate. The Medical College of Wisconsin Journal Club is a model for how other BRI chapters can enhance their presence on campus through partnering with existing organizations. BRI intends to promote this model with other chapters in the year ahead.

Documentary Screenings

Documentary film screenings provide BRI chapters with an opportunity to inform an audience and spark discussion on relevant issues in healthcare education and policy. BRI sponsored screenings of two films this year, CODE BLACK and Wait Till It's Free. CODE BLACK takes viewers inside the LA County Hospital's C-Booth trauma center for a look at Emergency Room medicine, following the real-world experience of ER doctors struggling to provide quality care in the changing landscape of healthcare policy. Wait Till It's Free explores the reasons behind the escalating costs of care in America, the perils of rationing that are inherent to government-controlled healthcare, and potential market-oriented solutions to our nation's healthcare crisis.

Debates

Debates have been a major part of BRI's programming since the organization began in 2009. BRI debates are lively events that bring together speakers from opposing sides of a healthcare policy argument to engage in spirited defense of their views. These informative debates are some of the most highly attended events produced by BRI.

Student Leadership Conference

The third annual BRI Student Leadership Conference was held March 26th to 29th in Washington, DC, and was a huge success. Under the theme, “Building a Bold Future,” BRI hosted 45 students from 18 different schools, including one international student from Nigeria. Conference participants were empowered with the information, ideas, and solutions they need to navigate the changing healthcare landscape and to ensure a professional future that is secure, useful, and ethical. We were especially fortunate to partner with The Heritage Foundation and Docs 4 Patient Care Foundation which offered students a full-day of lectures and discussion on healthcare policy and the ability to meet with policy experts at one of America’s premier think tanks. The Conference also included a public debate on the campus of Georgetown University.

A highlight of this year’s conference was the keynote address by David Goldhill, entrepreneur and CEO of GSN (Game Show Network) and author of Catastrophic Care: Why Everything We Think We Know about Health Care is Wrong. Students enjoyed the opportunity to hear from one of the healthcare policy reform movement’s most well-informed and outspoken advocates and BRI was particularly fortunate to secure his participation. Student leaders were also able to present their own research at this year’s conference. Danny McCorry, John Grimsley, Kate Nix, Jaron Smith, Jared Rhoads, and Sameer Lahka each made a presentation to the group. Video of the student presentations, along with the debate at Georgetown and other BRI events, will be made available on the BRI website.

Dr. Craig Jurgenson, MD (neurologist), re-enacts Dr. Benjamin Rush.

Chapter leaders brainstorm about next year's events at the Leadership Conference.

“ The conference was a terrific experience. I enjoyed it, learned a great deal, and also gained some new perspectives and ideas to bring back to my medical school. Thank you for everything. ”

- DAVID SERKSUNYS (MS1), MEDICAL COLLEGE OF WISCONSIN

“ Thank you so much for allowing me the opportunity to attend this wonderful event. I am so thankful for all the hard work you put into this conference...It is truly refreshing to hear new and innovative ideas about fixing the broken healthcare system with the free market system. I now have a ton of ideas for speakers and topics that I can bring back my campus organization. I am excited to host events for the remainder of this year and next! Thank you again for being a beacon of light in a world of progressive darkness. ”

- PAUL PANASIUK (MS1), UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-MADISON SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

BRI Student Success

BRI is making a real difference in the lives of its students and in the advancement of commonsense healthcare policies that protect the doctor-patient relationship. This was most clearly on display in a recent win for patients and physicians in the state of Michigan. On January 14th, Michigan Governor Rick Snyder signed into law SB 1033, a bill to ensure that Direct Primary Care Services are not treated as insurance products. MI State Senator Patrick Colbeck sponsored the bill, drawing heavily from a paper written by BRI student Danny McCorry while an intern at The Heritage Foundation, an experience BRI largely facilitated. Senator Colbeck said that McCorry's paper was "one of the more important references" for the bill, and "the basis for my current legislative strategy."

BRI encourages its students to participate in policy internships and provides significant support in this regard. We are proud that a number of our BRI students have been awarded prestigious internships at well-regarded think tanks such as The Heritage Foundation. This past spring, Georgetown medical student John Grimsley was awarded a Graduate Fellowship in Health Policy Studies at the Heritage Foundation. Grimsley used his fellowship to publish several white papers and an article in the Daily Signal on how implementing Obamacare's new medical coding system will further increase healthcare costs for Americans and put undue burdens on doctors and medical staff.

John Flo (MS1), BRI Chapter President at St. Louis University Medical School, will continue the tradition of BRI student leaders earning internships at the Heritage Foundation this summer where he was awarded a Health Policy internship. BRI will also be starting its own internship program this summer. Mina Ghobrial (MS1, Geisel School of Medicine at Dartmouth) will be conducting original research on medical student beliefs and attitudes regarding healthcare policy. This research will advance previous surveys published in 2011-12 which demonstrated that 80% of medical students supported Obamacare even though 40% admitted to knowing little about the law.

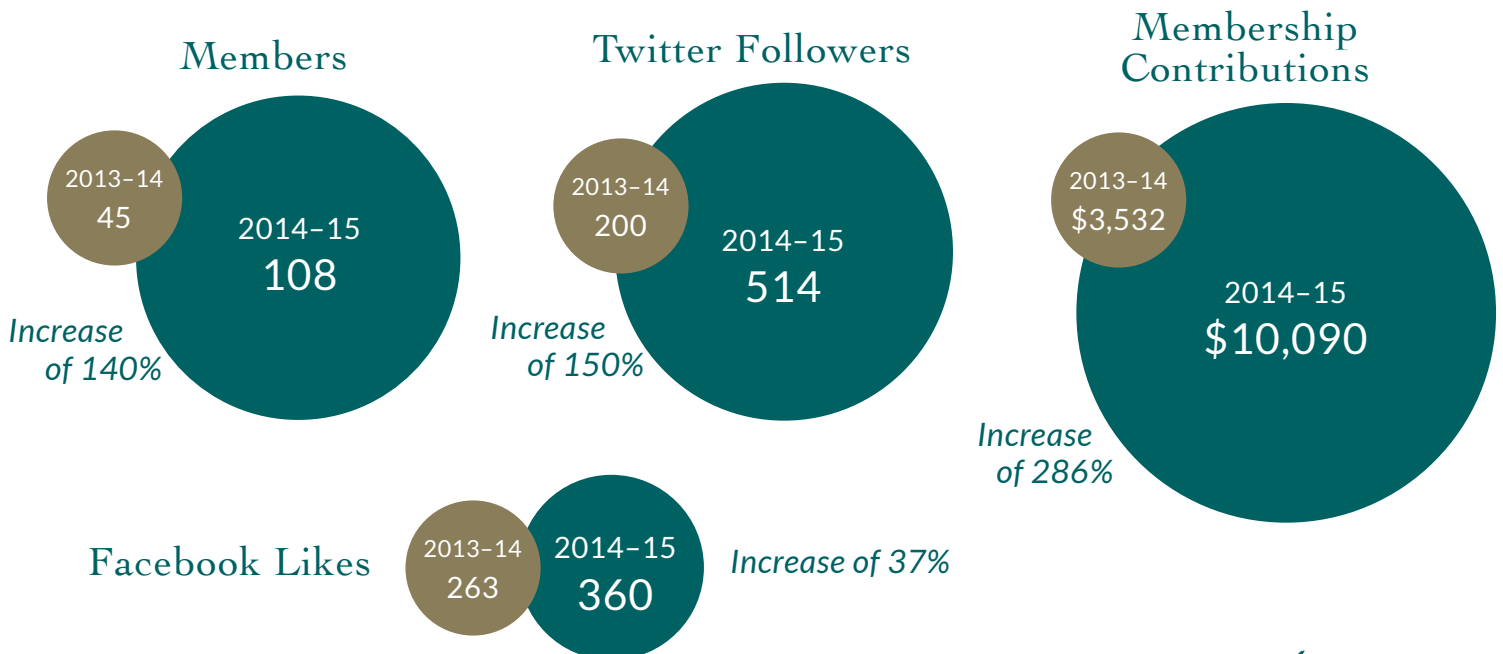

Collaborations

As a new organization still working to make its presence more widely known, BRI's leadership attends conferences and events to promote the BRI name and identify opportunities for collaboration with partner organizations. BRI Executive Director Beth Haynes and Program Management Consultant Charlotte Monte made successful trips throughout the country ensuring BRI was present at meetings sponsored by the following organizations:

- ALEXANDER HAMILTON SOCIETY
- ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS
- ASSOCIATION OF MATURE AMERICAN CITIZENS
- ATLANTA OBJECTIVIST SOCIETY
- ATLAS NETWORK
- CASCADE POLICY INSTITUTE
- DOCS 4 PATIENT CARE
- FEDERALIST SOCIETY
- FREE MARKET MEDICAL ASSOCIATION
- HERITAGE RESOURCE BANK
- NATIONAL COALITION OF PHYSICIANS FOR FREEDOM IN MEDICINE
- STATE POLICY NETWORK
- STUDENTS FOR LIBERTY
- UNITED PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS OF AMERICA

Organizational Strength

The 2014-2015 academic year was indeed a record-breaking year for BRI. We began the year with just under 50 official members and ended with more than 100. We increased our presence online and in social media. BRI's weekly newsletters reach a subscriber base of over 400 and boasts an open-rate of nearly 50 percent.

To ensure that BRI is equipped to manage this growth, and to put in place the systems and procedures that would foster consistent growth in the future, BRI reached out to the consulting firm of American Philanthropic, LLC and engaged their services to conduct an organizational audit and develop a comprehensive strategic plan. The result is a three-year plan for strengthening and expanding BRI's operations so that it can more successfully complete its mission. A published version of the plan will be made available to BRI's supporters and members in the months ahead.

Financial Summary

BRI is fortunate to have the support of several foundations and over 100 individual members. We recognize and value BRI supporter contributions and are careful stewards of the funds we raise.
