One doctor's Declaration of Independence

Greetings!

June 22, 2015

Why do we want you to get to know Dr. Daniel F. Craviotto, Jr.? Because we think he represents sentiments many doctors in America can relate to today. In spring of 2014, his Op-Ed, "A Doctor's Declaration of Independence," appeared in the Wall Street Journal. From the comments following his poignant piece, it was clear that he wasn't alone in his assessment of the situation facing many healthcare professionals.

Dr. Craviotto is one of the main organizers of this conference, July 20 - 26, 2015 in Keystone, Colorado.

We do not highlight Dr. Craviotto only because he is organizing potentially one of the most important healthcare conferences of 2015, but because he represents a wider movement of doctors expressing their concern about increased government regulation and bureaucratic oversight that keeps them from spending quality time with patients.

Please read Dr. Craviotto's succinct article. If it resonates with you, forward this email to your friends and colleagues. Ask them to sign up for our newsletter, like us on Facebook and follow us on Twitter. If his article really resonates with you, join him, me and many other concerned doctors at the Summit in Colorado next month.
