2015-2016 was a year of stellar achievements for BRI.

Thanks to you.

Greetings!

August 22, 2016

One of my favorite things to do every year as executive director is compile BRI's End of Year Report, detailing our accomplishments. This report is the measure of what we did, how effective we were, and how many people are involved with us. On the occasion of sending out this year's report, I was again amazed, humbled, and inspired by all the things we've achieved individually and as groups to reach new milestones in BRI's existence.

We are in large part measured by the number of well-attended events BRI chapters hold each year. Debates, lunch lectures, conferences--all BRI events are produced by energetic medical students--chapter leaders who work tirelessly above and beyond their rigorous medical studies to make BRI the flagship organization for free market healthcare information.

I hope you take a few minutes to read BRI's 2015-2016 EOY report and become humbled at the work still left to do, and moved by the work done so far to make an impact on preserving the doctor-patient relationship and healthcare freedom.

BRI sends nine to FMMA's 2016 conference

FREE MARKET MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Once again, we partnered with generous donors, doctors, and friends to send nine BRI student leaders and leader alumni to the 2016 FMMA free market conference in Oklahoma City.

The Free Market Medical Association is a non-partisan association that provides resources, support, and education to our membership, and to the public, about the free market movement and why it is so important. We help to defend and expand the practice of free market medicine against the interference and intrusion of the government or other third parties.
