We need YOUR help NOW to send more students to one of the most inspirational conferences available:

Free Market Medical Association 2017

Dear (Contact First Name),

Summers are extremely busy for medical students. Instead of running off to the beach, many are seeking internships, doing research, or working. These young people are spending some of the best days of their lives in pursuit of practicing medicine--not goofing off.

You can help BRI send medical students to the 2017 FMMA Annual Conference: Be a Beacon

Do we really want our future doctors to put in all this effort and sacrifice, only to be disappointed by a gargantuan regulatory state when they start practicing medicine on their own?

BRI and FMMA are so committed to educating our future doctors about the promise of healthcare freedom and preserving the patient-doctor relationship, that we typically sent 8 - 10 students to FMMA. This year due to lack of funds, we are only sending five...so far!

But you can change that. You can help us send more students!

Please consider a generous donation, and watch the video, below.

Together, we can help medical students make the most of their summer! Thank you for your partnership.

Sincerely,

Beth

HELP A FUTURE DOCTOR ATTEND FMMA'S 2017 CONFERENCE.

FMMA 2017 Annual Conference: Be a Beacon!
August 17-19, 2017, Oklahoma City

If they don't know about free market medicine, how can they support it?

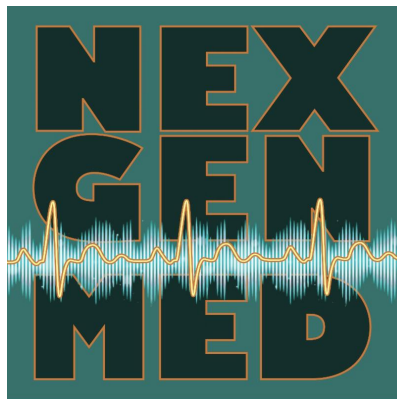

You can help build a cohort of future doctors dedicated to preserving freedom and the patient-doctor relationship.

It costs about $1,000 to send a student to the conference, including airfare & hotel. Please donate as generously as you can. Every dollar helps. Click the green bar below to donate.

Next Generation Medicine continues!
Dx: American Medicine

Where are doctors in the healthcare policy debate?

Doctors are late to the healthcare policy debate. That's the bad news. The good news is that they are arriving--knowledgeable and armed, standing firmly for their best interests in how American healthcare policy develops.

It's about time doctors are considered in this political tug-of-war.

It isn't just that doctors are affected by healthcare policy; they have a unique perspective on what actually works and doesn't work in the day-to-day practice of medicine that bureaucrats and regulators will never have.

There's more to healthcare policy than expanding Medicaid, or forcing people to buy insurance. How can doctors thrive in American medicine today?

#11 VENU JULAPALLI, MD
Conscious Medicine

"Ultimately, for me the crisis in medicine is a crisis in the erotic."

Dr. Venu Julapalli, gastroenterologist and founder of Conscious Medicine talks with John Flo about what's missing in the practice of medicine today, and how thoughtful healthcare policies can bolster the patient-doctor relationship, rather than obstruct it.
